ABOUT US

Food access is essential.

Local farmers, producers and restaurants have worked hard over the past year to continue to provide our communities with fresh, local and healthy foods.

Use this publication to start eating seasonally, and to connect with farms, markets, restaurants and retailers to see how you can continue to access local foods all year long.

Together, we can grow a food system that can withstand the effects of climate change and pandemics that threaten global supply chains.

Mission: To support a sustainable agricultural economy in Wisconsin by connecting residents in the region with food and agricultural products that are produced, processed, and sold locally.

Eastern and Southeastern regions have joined forces this year to increase our reach and bolster the regional local food system.

Join the Farm Fresh Atlas!

List in the Atlas to share your story, connect with consumers and showcase your commitment to local food. Each spring, copies of the Atlas are distributed throughout Southeastern Wisconsin to libraries, visitor centers, grocery stores, hospitals, and more. Over 3,000 people per month visit farmfreshatlas.org. Contact farmfreshsewi@gmail.com to list your farm, restaurant, business or organization in the Farm Fresh Atlas!

Five years ago we moved to new digs with the goal of having ducks. That first summer we explored the world of ducks. We've since expanded to turkeys, chickens, goats, and bees. We have a farm store called Twig + Berries. The shop features men's grooming products. Our products are made in small batches and ingredients are sourced from our farm. In addition to men's grooming products, we sell chickens, eggs, and honey. Top Products: soap, honey, chickens.

LOCAL FOOD ESSAY

By Paul & Marisa Maggio, Starry Nights Farm

Almost daily you can find an article or news story about climate change, and the misuse of natural resources and energy. A lot is blamed on agriculture pollution, and understandably so. 95% of agriculture in the US is conventional- using GMO seeds, herbicides, pesticides, chemical fertilizers, antibiotics, tillage, and heavy machinery. Many are factory farms, forcing the small farmer to make tough decisions to make a living. Farming income is the lowest it has been in 12 years. Small farmers have always been stewards of the land, but today, many are going from being practical to panic mode- cutting corners that make the land suffer. It's the age-old fight between ecology and economy. I won't keep writing about this because it can get quite depressing and I do believe ecology and economy can go hand in hand. There is an optimistic view!

Regenerative agriculture (RA) is a "new type" of farming that has been gaining ground. It has soil health as the foundation for healthy land, ecosystem, and environment, while producing the healthiest and best quality food system. It consists of soils being covered with plants at all times during the year and building organic matter (adding carbon into our soils) as paramount to a healthy ecosystem.

We began learning and practicing RA when we bought our farm in 2012. At our farm, we have a diverse amount of plant types populating our fields. The perennial plants capture water from rain to prevent runoff. These plants capture the sun's rays and turn this energy into food through photosynthesis. The plant takes in carbon dioxide and release oxygen. The land provides a wonderful habitat for pollinators. There is wildlife below the ground too, as millions of microbes, earthworms, and insects breakdown and recycle minerals and dead growth. Let the animals above and below the soils contribute to the interworking of our natural ecosystem! Our cattle are integral to this ecosystem process. They harvest these perennial plants and turn the plants into meat and milk. By plant harvesting, carbon gets deposited into the ground through root system death and regrowth. Without the cows harvesting the plant life, this ecosystem would become out of balance, and certain species would dominate. The cows also deposit fertilizer for the ecosystem to take in and recycle. All this is the ecology part.

However, without the economy part, the ecology suffers. For small farmers to be able to make a living in our “big business-factory farming world”, we as consumers need to provide support to this movement. We can encourage this type of production and environmental protection with the spending of our food dollars. Grocery stores, restaurants, chefs, school cafeterias, and people cooking at home are what drive the food economy. We can make a difference to our health, our environment, and our children’s future with how we spend our food money.

I once read “don’t ask why food is expensive, ask why food is so cheap” and it is so true. Keep in mind “cheap food” has a tremendous cost to our environment and our health. We might not consider this when spending our money on food but you are paying for it through your health care costs and your taxes.

With economy and ecology working together you have the power to better our environment, provide stability to farmers and rural communities, and improve your health!

Earth day has come and gone... But don’t we owe it to ourselves to think about this more than one day a year? What if every day we look at the way we use resources, the food we eat, the energy we use, the waste we produce that goes into landfills... a little bit can make a HUGE difference!

CHICKEN SOUFFLE

Recipe by Sweetwater Farm

Sauté the chicken in butter for 5 minutes on each side or until browned. Sprinkle ground thyme over each breast, both sides and arrange in a shallow baking dish. Combine the mayo, sour cream, and Parmesan cheese in a bowl. Place some of the mayo mixture on each chicken breast. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 40 minutes until golden brown.

Ingredients

2 boneless chicken breasts
Butter
Thyme

Topping

2/3 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup sour cream
1/3 cup ground Parmesan cheese

Edible Door Seeking New Publisher

Since we first launched it in 2013, Edible Door has been a heart-warming experience for us (Gina, Leslie and Jon). Working with our amazing advertisers and getting such remarkable feedback from our readers has been especially gratifying. But we're not getting any younger, retirement is calling and the time seems right to find new ownership that will further expand our reach throughout our five-county area and take Edible Door to new heights. Over the past seven years we have grown our publication beyond our original expectations and in the process nourished the food movement in Northeastern Wisconsin.

If you are interested in learning more about Edible Door or stepping into the ownership role, please reach out to us.

Lester's BISON FARM

After retiring from the United States Marine Corp, Ron Lester combined his legendary USMC skills and his passion for the American Bison into a way of life on his ranch.

Not always considered a “delicate” animal, the American Bison moves with dignity and grace even under the most extreme conditions. As Ron says, “A Bison always goes through a storm never with the storm.”

With leadership and vision, Ron established his first herd of Bison in 1973 and to this day, the Bison roam on over 160 acres of beautiful green Wisconsin Pastures. The herd is completely hormone free and grass fed.

The Head of the Herd, Ron Lester

What separates Lester’s Bison Farm from the rest? Quality! We proudly offer premium Bison, high end Pork, Seafood, Young Goose, Duck, Alligator, Elk, Beef, and Amish country hand-rolled butter. Our products are all organic, all free range and all are of higher quality than that sold in high end restaurants. Best yet, we ship anywhere in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

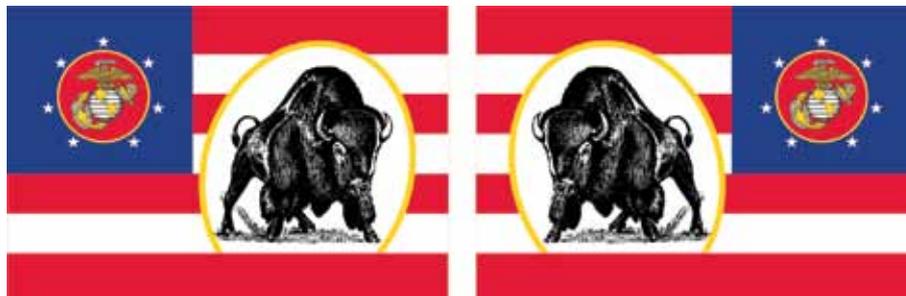

The Herd

We also offer free range Brown and Rainbow Eggs sourced from local farmers and a wide selection of hand crafted, award winning Wisconsin Cheeses.

We go the extra mile to ensure top of the line product for our customers at the best prices. Our mission is to offer the BEST PRODUCT for the BEST PRICE, to the BEST PEOPLE!!

Come see us at Lester’s Country Store on the Ranch, it is an easy 60 minute drive from Chicago. For a complete directory of products, directions and hours, check out www.LestersBisonFarm.com and see how you too can enjoy delicious Lester products.
